1. Procurement of several items of office equipment, supplies, and furniture from military supply sources has recently become critical. This is due in part to property being returned to the German Government, and to sharp decreases in allocations normally charged to the German Government as occupation costs. The below listed items are requisitioned as unavailable through military channels of supply, and either unavailable or excessively costly on the local market.

2. In procuring typewriters, it is highly desirable that these machines be new. The typewriters we now have are rebuilt, and our experience has been unsatisfactory due to regular breakdown, and inadequate repair facilities.
